Battery covers or cell covers are generally made of molded plastic and are widely used to protect cells against accidents and mishandling. They may be molded into a specific shape to provide protection against impacts and moisture penetration, and may be attached to the cell with adhesive or mechanical fasteners. Various types of cell covers are commonly available for automotive and other applications.The Oxford Charitable Fund is a pot of money funded through the Oxford College Council. It is the aim of the fund to provide financial aid for the students of the college. The specific amount of funding for each student depends on the number of students in different age groups in any given year. How much can I apply for? The Oxford Charitable Fund will only provide funding for students who are studying in the UK and who are exempt from national insurance contributions. How can I apply?
